

ROSE

Joining the ROSE team will give you the unique opportunity to empower entrepreneurs and investors towards recognizing and fostering sustainable practices. We developed a pragmatic approach and innovative framework allowing startups to truly understand where they stand and how to improve. The best part? You will be coaching entrepreneurs on a daily basis and working closely with investors/VCs to push the industry forward. Alongside academic partners and many other strategic stakeholders, we at ROSE are proactively challenging the entrepreneurial scene and seeking to become an industry standard.

You will be coaching and leading early ventures throughout the ROSE Framework; a two-pillar process consisting of an internal assessment that identifies operational practices, and an impact assessment that captures the external impact of a business on society and the environment. From medtech startups, to 3D-printing companies and even fintech unicorns such as SumUp, at ROSE you are constantly deep diving into different business models and closely collaborating with successful entrepreneurs. On the strategic side, we are proactively looking to refine our framework and develop it strategically. This means creating a knowledge base to further ground our approach in state-of-the-art research, establishing new partnerships with valuable industry stakeholders, and scaling our framework to a user-friendly digital platform.
